

Semester One Reflective Report

TE182503

January 8, 2016

Key Skills Considered To Be Weaknesses

One key skill which I consider to be a weakness is my ability to read code which is not mine. Often in my work I have to look at other code whether it is for assistance or to assess another's code. I can read through my own code when I know what each process is doing but when faced with others' complete code it often overwhelms me and I find it hard to break down with the help of clear comments. This affects my work because it means when I have to provide reviews I struggle to give as much feedback as I would like.

Conclusion

References